OK, Johnny, I'll do you that favor. But I don't do FB either.

Best I can do is to create a link in my blog to let you, and anybody else who reads this email, see these 2 pages.

No need for me to do any editing on your posts.

You can forward this to any Egroup or paste the link into any FB account.

Cheers, Danny

Danny,

1. Would you be willing to post the clarification for me, as a comment on Facebook. I realize it's a bit risky for you, but please edit my wording, so it's clear I am the only perp. I wouldn't want to make you an accessory.

Hi, Bernard. Please do me a big favor and post this clarification (very important to me) on that social network (Libro ng Mukha) on my behalf: "I was planning to share Mila's heart-breaking private writeup with the general public when the trigger-happy censors, probably to save space, suddenly jumped in, grabbed control for a few seconds, and edited JMR! In doing so they probably got a Very Good from their boss, proud of the conciseness thus achieved. But in doing so the meaning changed. I had started off writing by calling the attention of Ray and Gordon, mutual friends with Perla in U.P. Diliman, asking whether they'd heard the bad news yet. Then I segued in Mila's paragraphs: "But here's Mila....." What the censors did was to truncate both of us, and then to graft Mila's piece directly to the opening part of JMR's posting. It looked like she had broadcast the whole thing herself, which was not correct, so understandably Mila was annoyed. It was my bright idea alone, including contacting the two guys. As soon as I spotted the dastardly deed's results, I clicked on the three dots aligned vertically, but my EDIT function had been disabled. I believe I am currently banned from making a new post or editing existing ones.

2. Danny Do you see anything wrong with calling them a "bunch of morons" when I complained to Facebook initially?

3. My friend is scared but playing dumb here.

Bernard: I am not a member of that social network.

Johnny: It's just a translation of Facebook into Tagalog, to get away from the censors. No special social network (I actually meant to say "social medium").

4. But my friend is still pussy-footing, using delaying tactics.
