Lourdes and Tony had no children and so they decided to use a proxy father to start their family.

On the day he was due to arrive, the husband kissed his wife good-bye and said, "I'm off to work, the man should be here any minute."

Half an hour later, just by chance, a door-to-door baby photographer rang the doorbell, hoping to make a sale. "Good morning madam, you don't know me but I've come to. . . " "Oh, no need to explain I've been expecting you", Lourdes cut in.

"Really?" the photographer said, "well good, I've made a specialty of babies."

"That's what my husband and I were hoping for, please come in and have a seat. Just where do we start," Lourdes asked blushing.

"Just leave everything to me. I usually try a couple in the bathtub, one on the couch and perhaps a couple on the bed. Sometimes the living room floor is fun too, more room to spread out."

"Bath tub, living room floor? No wonder it didn't work for Tony and me."

"Well madam, none of us can guarantee a good one every time. But if we try several different positions and I shoot from six or seven angles, I'm sure you will be pleased with the results."

"I hope we can get this over with quickly," Lourdes gasped.

"Madam, in my line of work, a man must take his time. I'd love to be in and out in five minutes, but you'd be disappointed with that, I'm sure."

"Do. . . don't know about it!" Lourdes exclaimed.

The photographer opened his briefcase and took out a portfolio of his baby pictures. "This one was done on the top of a bus in downtown London."

"Oh, my God!!!" Lourdes exclaimed tugging nervously at her handkerchief.

"And these twins turned out exceptionally well considering their mother was so difficult to work with". The photographer handed Lourdes the picture.

"She was difficult?" "Yes, I'm afraid so. I finally had to take her to a big tree to get the job done right. People were crowding round four or five deep, pushing and shoving to get a better look."

"For or five deep?" asked Lourdes, eyes wide with amazement.

"Yes", the photographer said. "And for more than three hours, too. Then darkness fell and I had to hurry by shots. Finally squirrels began to nibble at my equipment so I just packed it all in." Lourdes leaned forward. "You mean they actually chewed your, erm ... equipment?"

"That's right. Well madam, if you are ready I'll set up my tripod and we can get down to it."

"A tripod! You need a tripod?" said Lourdes looking extremely anxious.

"Oh, yes I have to use a tripod to rest my Canon on. It's much too big for me to hold while I'm getting ready for action . .

Lourdes fainted.
